The interest in the crops of this section, which are just now at the stage when any untoward weather would have a more dis-astrous effect than at any other time of the rear, is considerable among the business men of Memphis, who will find the followius an excellent report. It is kindly fur nished by Messre. Hill, Fontaine & Co.

Herewith is submitted the cotton crop report of the Memphis district, which em-braces West Tennessee. North Arkansas, North Mississippi and North Alabama, for the month of August. all our correspondents report damage to the growing cotton plant from drouth, shedding, rust and worms. The weather during the month has in the main been too dry, and complaint is still general of a prevailing drouth. The lateness of the planting season, coupled with the unprecedented backwardness of the crop, has subjected the plant to more than its common dangers. The dry weather continues, and every day adds to the injury which the plant is sustaining by shedding of its squares and blooms. Cotton is not fruiting well, and it is present condition throughout the district and be said to be anything but satisfactory. Picking has a arcely commenced, but will become general throughout the district between September 20th and October 5th. The greatest danger now to be feared is the appearance of frost at an early date, and all estimates as to the prospective yield in the district are only get foot. According to the Signal Service officer's report October 13th is the average date of the falling of frost in this section. The hope and salvation of planters throughout the district is that the fall will be a late one. In this event the yield in the Memphis district will be an average one, and it is believed there will be some hilariousness, so to speak, should the other company begin the building of tracks.

Dickering has at lest reached the ears of the city fathers, who are now discussing a plan to bridge the tracks on Georgia street. Just west of Main about twenty-five tracks cross Georgia, virtually cutting it in two. It is said that the railroads are willing to pay the city a considerable sum if it will declare that portion of the street closed to travel, and it is proposed to use this amount, about $20,000, for the pur-pose of building a bridge on Georgia street, east and west, over the tracks, high enough to allow trains to pass beneath. If this is done the present obstruction will of course be obviated. —The following will, dated Memphis, Tenn., April 21, 1883, was admitted to probate yesterday: "In case I should not survive the trip I am about to make to Philadelphia, Pa., I leave all the property which I am now possessed of, real, personal and mixed, to my daughter Mrs. Carrie Mars all, to be her own, absolutely Carrie Mars all, to be her own, absolutely free from the control of her present or any fu!ture husiand, to dispose of as she pleases, but advest her boy in the very best manner. This certainly entitles us to be shown some favors. If it be true that a great city can only be built up by manufactories Memphis has seen its best days, for as soon as a factory starts heavy texes are imposed, and the business, which was only an experiment, anyway, is killed at birth. Arkansas, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia and most Southern States exempt factories from taxation for ten years. This mill pays from five to ten times as much more taxes in proportion to the amount invested as is paid by the general run of merchants on Front and Main stree.s. It is not fair."
